

Acknowledgments

We, the editors, thank the authors for their quality effort in researching and developing their chapters. We also thank the sponsors of the USAF Counterproliferation Center (CPC) who provided the resources that allowed us to support this project, especially Dr. Charles Galloway, Director, Chemical and Biological Technologies Directorate, Defense Threat Reduction Agency.

We also extend our appreciation to Mrs. Jo Ann Eddy and Mrs. Abbey Plant who do an outstanding job of tolerating the unending requests for editing, researching, writing, administration, and general publishing efforts. Without their dedicated service, this product would not have the quality, accuracy, and professional appearance it does. We also thank Mr. Alan Reid for his editorial contributions to this project.

As part of this project, a workshop was held at Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, Colorado, on December 9, 2004. In addition to the authors, attending were invited guests from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Colorado Department of Agriculture, and other agencies to hear the authors' presentations and provide input. Many of their comments were included in the final product. The editors give their sincere appreciation to the workshop attendees for their interest and comments regarding this agroterrorism project.